ABOUT THE COUNTRY

Today, Mauritania's far more liberalised economy has opened the way for domestic and foreign investment alike.

The mining sector is the country's economic growth driver. After nearly half a century of iron ore production, recent years have seen an increasing number of new projects involving the exploration, exploitation and extraction of other mining resources such as gold, diamonds, cobalt, phosphates, salt, gypsum, zinc, iron, copper and uranium.

At the crossroads between North Africa and Sub-Saharan Africa, Mauritania's geographic location is one of its biggest assets.

| WHAT TO KNOW

ADMINISTRATIVE FORMALITIES?

In an effort to attract foreign investment by simplifying the procedures for operating in the country, the Mauritanian government created the Consolidated Office for Investment in 1998. A "one-stop" office that reports to the Ministry of Economy and Development, its role is to advise investors. All of the projects submitted to it are sent to the Council of Ministers for review.

FREE TRANSFER OF FOREIGN CAPITAL?

Businesses and individuals that have invested foreign capital in Mauritania may freely transfer the following in convertible currencies:

- › any remuneration on invested capital in the form of dividends, either in full for foreign-owned companies or prorata for companies with a mixed share capital,
- › any foreign capital if the business is sold or activity ceases.

Provided all of the laws and regulations in effect in Mauritania have been complied with, all duly-established companies are free to import any goods they need to operate; to export the goods they produce; to define and execute their policies with regard to production, sales and hiring; to choose their clients and suppliers; and to set the prices they wish to charge.

TAXATION?

An agreement eliminating double taxation was signed between France and Mauritania. The corporate tax rate in Mauritania is 25%.

FREE ZONE OF NOUADHIBOU?

In January, 2013, the Mauritanian government decided to make of Mauritania in general, and city of Nouadhibou in particular a privileged destination as well for the international investors, that for the national operators. Located in Nouadhibou, the Industrial and mining National company (SNIM) hit at 31/12/2013 an absolute record of annual sales with 13,042 million tons loaded.

Societe Generale Mauritanie is there to help, so ask advice from your direct contact on how to accomplish your international projects.
